

New Moon

Lia

The wind that blew through my hair Should be reaching where you are just about now. The song that I unconsciously hum Is that promise that will be fulfilled someday.

Goodbye, city of memories, until we meet again.

my heart will find The light of the pale blue moon wavered, And I clenched my shaking fingers. If I were to say that I'm not a fraid, that would be a lie. Even so, I stare only ahead of me.

I was enveloped by that place and those people. They warm the i nside of my heart even now. And then your soul is far away, Clo sing your eyes at the same sound of the bell that I hear.

I won't forget, so maybe I can start walking again.

my heart will find The light of the pale blue moon wavers, And I hold my breath as I dream. From here on, I am aiming for the vast unknown lands That spread out far and wide, and the future that lies past the sky.

On the other side of unending time, certain love dissolves into the atmosphere. A light that will never go out for eternity dw ells here inside my chest.

my heart will find Even if we are far apart, Even if the world were to end, There is nothing that can stop my feelings. I star e only straight ahead.

my heart will find The light of the pale blue moon wavered, And I clenched my shaking fingers. my heart will find The light of the pale blue moon wavers, And I hold my breath and continue t o dream. my heart will find