Before the next one opens The past one must close

My mama so prepared

As they check for proper clothes

Now that I think about it I was always takin' away from my father Or he was always takin' away from me It's probably why we so close now Ya know We been starvin' so long in these crazy ghetto streets And they say we're so wrong for the way we try to eat How long will he struggle I gotta grind jus' to eat now I gotta eat jus' a lil' now So I gotta live my life this way I stretched and yawned 4 years from a newborn On a charter bus Filled with stranged humans Besides my mother nobody seems anxious Though we on our way to visit a college campus We roll up freshen up at a food concession Can't talk to strangers I wanna ask em questions Saw a woman cryin' Boy face the fence I don't wanna go to college If it causes this Back on the bus still analyzin' vibes Turned to my moms excel asked her "Why you cryin?" She said because I'm happy But I could tell she lyin' And since lyin' was a curse I sense storytellin' Her eyes focused on a object long enough they tingle That's when she reached into her bag because her phone was ringin' She said "I accept" I'm still puzzle piecing I knew my pops was on the other line Lonely singin' Soon after we roll up to these gates Barbed wired up Men standin' in the entrance armed up With a close eye on us We enter the buildin' Got checked by the women who starin' My mother Pull out a card with a picture of her face on it Two papers with our names on it They identify her They lookin' at me Me my confusion of the journey Through these walls we go

For this mini battle has chose
Finally we reach our final destination
My poppa placed in a seat
Facin' me
No women in his class
Jus' men who never laugh
And when they see they family
They sing

So I begin my investigation My elbow on the round table My palm at chin I'm lookin' at him Ask questions like "how you been?" "when you graduatin'?" Time was up got pulled away Kickin' and screamin' Tears came to his eyes But never fell in front me Got old enough to realize Must've fell up under me Bein' locked away in prison from your family Tryin' to find ways for us to eat I see

[Chorus]
