

good guy

Lindsay Ell

You're radio silence
Speaks louder than words
As if it wasn't bad enough before
It's like you're still trying
To make my life worse
Still making sure

I've buried all your secrets
Just like they were mine
Cause I'm scared what would happen
If I ever told my side
What's worse than keeping quiet
Is keeping up the lie
But I'll keep trying to tell myself
You're a good guy

Ooh ooh, when they ask about you
I do my best to dance around it
Ooh ooh, don't ask me the truth
Cause I'm not supposed to talk about it
You were, you were such a good guy, good guy
I thought you were a good guy

I never thought friends would
Be part of the deal
I never thought you'd do that to me
And you can pretend that
You never loved me for real
But we both know that's crazy

And even, after all this time
I'm scared of what would happen
If I ever told my side
What's worse than keeping quiet
Is keeping up the lie
So everyone around you still believes that
You're a good guy

Ooh ooh, when they ask about you
I do my best to dance around it
Ooh ooh, don't ask me the truth
Cause I'm not supposed to talk about it
You were, you were such a good guy, good guy
I thought you were a good guy

You made me think
If I protected your reputation
Then you'd protect mine
But then you went and did the opposite
What you did ain't right
You let me know that your story
Would always better and louder than mine
Louder than mine

What's worse than keeping quiet
Is keeping up the lie
So everyone around you stills believes that

You're a good guy
