

It's Time For Drastic Measures They're Not Taking You Seriously

Listener

And when the music stops, all we have are words merely so listen up, they're not taking you seriously. and I'd write the words, if I only knew what you needed touch you in the heart...Try and stop the bleeding. and all I want is for you to be ok I'll do anything for you you just say the word. and I'll write the words, and tell everyone our story. Try and touch their hearts hope they don't ignore me. and all I want is for us to be ok I'd give my life for just say the word. and I'll say the words, it's what I do it's not my choice. They touch me in my heart, I try and give em all a voice. and I don't want it if it's easy. I can't have it until I've really worked for it. Because all you'll have is this idiot. But I'll write the words, and if you give me 5 minutes. I might break your heart, But we're just beginning. and all I want is for our you to be ok I'll do anything for you just say the words. and I'll spread the word as far as this body can reach. Try and find their hearts, no matter how deep. and I'll die for you I love you all with all I am. I'll do anything for you just say the word. and when I've stopped believing. I hope you'll pick up all these pieces that I'm leaving. Because you don't want me if I'm cutting all these corners.

And when the music stops, all we have are words merely so listen up, they're not taking you seriously. They don't respect you, it might be your managing style. If they neglect you, you might try not being kind. When no one likes you, it's time to start docking their pay. What if they hurt you, you might try filing a complaint. But remember sticks and stones, and stick those stones where you can use em again, make em bruise when you send that they'll lose in the end, when they feel your revenge. But right now's the time, and it's got to be drastic. Trying to hold it all together with prayer and some plastic ties, no matter what the size. I try and try, and die. A little death every time I close my eyes, and resurrect and pass right by. Another day, another chance another window, but they're not taking you seriously though. We're downsizing your accounts. We're all hoping things will bounce. We got to do what's right for the economy. We have to let you go, because we have no more money. They're not taking you seriously. Your oblivious and can't feel shame. It must be how you carry yourself. You're the only one to blame. So listen up. and when I've stopped believing. I hope you'll pick up all these pieces that I'm leaving. Because you don't want me if I'm cutting all these corners. I've been cutting all these corners. These corners.
