

Last Thing On My Mind

Liv Dawson

Wake up and you're still there
Its all I see
You left all your things
You know that I still care
The memory's I keep
You still have the keys

But this house feels so empty
Constant questioning
If the walls could talk
Which side would they be on

Oh, tangled up in history
Why can't we jump the bridge we burned
This love is hitting differently this time I let the edges blur
But I don't I wanna be the one to cross the line in case we both get hurt
So I tell you you're last thing on my mind
When you're still the first

Remember sitting in your car
And you never cry
But you did that night
Babe we've come so far
You said you would try
So why did you lie

But we go round in circles
Chasing echoes
Of who we used to be
When we were happy

Giving up your hold on me
I didn't think I'd fall so deep
Now you're everything I need
That's a secret that I keep

Oh, tangled up in history
Why can't we jump the bridge we burned
This love is hitting differently this time I let the edges blur
But I don't I wanna be the one to cross the line in case we both get hurt
So I tell you you're last thing on my mind
When you're still the first
