

Shania Twain Is Making Me Cry

Liza Anne

I know you're trying to be a good guy
And not hook up after the break up
No more blurring the lines
But I don't not wanna call you
I don't wanna show my cards like this
It's taking everything not to drive to your house wearing your old tee shirt
And start screaming about
All the times I should have rolled over and ended the fight
Sometimes I was a lousy partner
And I wanna get it right

I know that I wanted to
Have space just like you wanted to
But this space feels like an empty room
And it doesn't feel right
How long do I have to try
To fight the urge
To stick with the goodbye
I'm still in love what if that never dies
Shania Twain is out here making me cry

I've never been the one to hold on
At the end I cut the cord and I start to move on but Shaking you feels impossible
And missing you is palpable
And wanting you is undeniable
Love is a process of letting go
Even when I had you, I didn't have you
You're your own
I just wanna be the one who's catching your fall
I don't wanna turn into someone
You hardly know at all

I know that I wanted to
Have space just like you wanted to
This space feels like an empty room
And it doesn't feel right
How long do I have to try
To fight the urge
To stick with the goodbye
I'm still in love what if that never dies
Shania Twain is out here making me cry
Boo boo!

I know that I wanted to
Have space just like you wanted to
This space feels like an empty room
And it doesn't feel right
How long do I have to try
To fight the urge
To stick with the goodbye
I'm still in love what if that never dies
Shania Twain is out here making me, making me cry
Boo hoo!

Boo hoo!

Boo hoo!
