Didn't i hear you say your heart's made out of steel no one's gonna get so close, no one's gonna know how you feel now you're a punch drunk sycophant, a little s.o.b. you say your mind is made up, isn't that the way that it's supp osed to be and it's a long way down and it's a long, long way down walking that tall your head is gonna trip your feet walking with the devil's fine, just don't call it looking for s ympathy when it's four a.m. and mister you can't sleep 'cause your blood's still rushing at cocaine speed and you know all that you need's a little baby to say ah mister cool down won't you let me fade those blues away and it's a long way down and it's a long, long way down and when you hit the ground you're gonna know about it mister let's you and me see if we can't make a deal i'll give you the world and all you've gotta do is cry for me the reason it's a clich Ž is because it's true the harder you climb, the harder you fall, and that means you so mister hard head, hard nose, hard as steel you're just a punch drunk sycophant, a little s.o.b. and it's a long, it's a long way down and it's a long, long way down and when you hit the ground you're gonna know about it