

Get To You

Locnville

I would walk a thousand miles to you, cross the seven seas, I'd do
anything to get to you.
Shouldered a lot of lives, and I've told a lot of lies, but I did everything just for you, and when times got hard, just the thought
signs, let me slip and slide, filled me up with pride, but I still haven't got to you.

Hold up, right there, don't move, I'm right here, and I know that at you're waiting for me, it's funny how the system always seems to cater for me, a long road of memories, pleasantly surprised at the strongest you've ever seen, people who befriended me soon became my enemies, but nevertheless, no stress, calm as can ever be, steadily moving, proving to you the best of me, so now I'm sitting here thinking, linking up the old to let the good times roll.

I would walk a thousand miles to you, cross the seven seas, I'd
do
anything to get to you.
Shouldered a lot of lives, and I've told a lot of lies, but I did
signs, let me slip and slide, filled me up with pride, but I still haven't got to you.

And just when I thought you were nowhere to be seen, I talked over the wind and they told me where you would be, so I kept on my mission, and standing for my position was the best thing they insisted for me, and how could I let them down, everything you said is sound, it always made its way to me, so I'm talking over this to you, it takes two, and a few lines to get to you.

I would walk a thousand miles to you, cross the seven seas, I'd
do
anything to get to you.
Shouldered a lot of lives, and I've told a lot of lies, but I did
signs, let me slip and slide, filled me up with pride, but I still haven't got to you.
