Spring, summer, fall and winter pass
Now I finally broke free from my mother's care
As the years go by, worries surround me
I try to write in my journal but it ends up being a letter of apology

Starting from some point, so naturally
I discovered myself living as I get over you
It was a long but short time and many things changed
You are probably different too

I took out my feelings for you
And threw them over the clouds
Now I can pass by your house without feeling anything
Too much time passed for me to have lingering attachments

The memories that seemed would
Never leave is now far away
As you can see, I am doing very well now
How are you doing?

Take care, take care
Sometimes I think of you
How about you? I'm not saying I miss you
Baby I'm so good, I'm so good
I am doing well
Baby I'm so good
I'm just curious

From my shy confession

To the many misunderstandings that were never addressed
All of those feelings have gotten buried under new relationships
So I can't remember them anymore

I don't long for you but I do feel a bit nostalgic
After you took away my last hope
Your picture that made me want to cry just by looking at it
And other traces of you, don't even come to my eyes anymore

I took out my feelings for you
And threw them over the clouds
Now I can pass by the playground in front of my house
Without thinking anything
I'm just keeping the memories but time keeps flowing

The memories that seemed would
Never leave is now far away
The chronic disease called lingering attachment
That seemed incurable
Now I can laugh about it - how are you doing?

Take care, take care
Sometimes I think of you
How about you? I'm not saying I miss you
Baby I'm so good, I'm so good
I am doing well
Baby I'm so good
I'm just curious

We used to dress down and match our footsteps in this town
Now I can't even find that air
The clothes that you didn't take with you
Because traces of us still remain, I can't throw it out

Though I'm curious, I don't want to become sad
So I pretend to be cool
And avoided hearing about you
I still can't look at your picture properly
I guess I can't help it

Take care, take care
Sometimes I think of you
How about you? I'm not saying I miss you
Baby I'm so good, I'm so good
I am doing well
Baby I'm so good
I'm just curious
