

Whiskey Serenade

Logan Michael

Bottle of Jack on the table
Half empty glass in my hand
I ain't made it south of the label
But I ain't gonna stop till I am

Bury me six feet deep under the ground
Already broken, what's stopping me now?
Look in the mirror and all that I see
Is a half empty shell of what I used to be

I wanna know
How do you sleep at night?
With a heart so cold
Took all of me when you tore out the drive
Since you've been gone I've been drunk and alone
Tryna wash all the memories away
While this 90 proof in my veins
Sings a whiskey serenade

For all the years, through the hard times
Had your back through it all
Went from all right to goodbye, now you
Won't even answer my calls

I wanna know
How do you sleep at night?
With a heart so cold
Took all of me when you tore out the drive
Since you've been gone I've been drunk and alone
Tryna wash all the memories away
While this 90 proof in my veins
Sings a whiskey serenade

Bury me six feet deep under the ground
Already broken, what's stopping me now?

I wanna know
How do you sleep at night
With a heart so cold
Took all of me when you tore out the drive
Since you've been gone I've been drunk and alone
Tryna wash all the memories away
While this 90 proof in my veins
Sings a whiskey serenade
