

There is a place that looks like Louisiana
In Italy
A gentle breeze moves the white sheets on the terrace
So tenderly

It feels like the South
For time lasts forever
And life certainly
More than a million years
Always in the summer

And in the yard all the children, they are playing
Still young and free
I look around at this beauty that surrounds me
It's all I need

It feels like the South
For time lasts forever
And life certainly
More than a million years
Always in the summer

Some darker days, they are coming, we all know it
It's endlessly
And from the storm we try to hide, but it's a lost cause
They say it's our destiny

And I hope it's the South
Here time lasts forever
For we could have lived
More than a million years
Always in the summer
