

Strangers On The Subway

Lola Marsh

You drank your coffee in the morning
And told me you are low and dry
You left me walking 'round the corner
For a while, for a while

I wasn't sure just what to do then
Felt like I'm about to cry
I couldn't reach you from the window
For my eyes, for my eyes were painted blind
For my eyes, for my eyes were painted blind

There was a time we were like strangers on the subway
And other times we were enemies at heart
You were my lover, now my friend
You are my brother till the end

The lake was frozen, I remember
You told me you're about to drown
You left me standing in the hallway
For a while, for a while

I wasn't sure just what to do then
Called your name though you were far
I couldn't save you from the night time
For my eyes, for my eyes were painted blind
For my eyes, for my eyes were painted blind

There was a time we were like strangers on the subway
And other times we were enemies at heart
You were my lover, now my friend
You are my brother till the end

There was a time we were like strangers on the subway
And other times we were enemies at heart
You were my lover, now my friend
You are my brother till the end

Till the end
Till the end
