

Leaning

LOLO

I don't want the doctor to know that I don't wanna heal
A hold is broken here but there's nothing to see here
And cannot fix with Tylenol, a hundred dollar bill
And all I need is time to forget all this

I pulled a photo up from back in our youth
It looked a lot like me and it felt a lot like you
But there ain't no one left who can stop the change
We're crying out, maybe that's the end

'Cause you've been leaning, leaning on the weight of my love
Now you're sinking, sinking like a house in the mud
And all I had was never enough

I don't want the doctor to know that I know how to fix
All the reasons why I'm hung up on this
I already know what's wrong, I need to get more sleep
Can I be next to you for a couple weeks?

You've been leaning, leaning on the weight of my love
And now you're sinking, sinking like a house in the mud
And all I had was never enough

You need Jesus now, he can fix you up
And live in his castle, ride in his truck
He's got clouds for a wheels
And you ride around town, town, town, town

You've been leaning, leaning on the weight of my love
Now you're sinking, sinking like a house in the mud
And all I had was never enough
