I could love you easily

You are the object of my desire I paint your portrait my eyelids are alive in silence Cloaks and limelight shadow hidden rhymes Destined to suffer so say no to the world and all its rules eas ily Open desire and face head on all I adore Covert the science that plagues every moment of thought You seem so perfect in this gentle light On a heart string tight rope let me now blur the lines of asylu Steal away an untouchable shore You watch and wait as sinners take the bait and sin some more I could love you easily Show me desire concealed in these whispers our cause Open the light of your life I exist for Destined to suffer many a time Distrust of dialogue hold torment deep inside in this age Sail away entice your mind Disguising the best of ourselves is our one true crime