

Coronado

Lovejoy

Can you tell me?

How many times can you kiss someone you don't love
Before you get tired?

Can you tell me?

How many times can you wake up with a stranger
Before it turns to spite?

'Cause he looks like me and sounds like me
And I already know that there's alarm bells in the cenotaph with soothing dulcet tones
And you could stick one in your heart to serve reminders, be alone
But I could taste the sulphur on his voice while talking on the phone
About, about the bedpost notched into the floor
But how can you be proud and treat love like a scoreboard?
When you treat love like a scoreboard

And it's, you

You bring the sunshine where you, go
Seems pretty unfair we don't get much 'round here
So if you're gonna stay could you just let me know, oh
It never rains in coronado
Much rather have your heart than take it out alone
If you're gonna stay could you just let me know?

And its, you

You bring the sunshine where you, go
Seems pretty unfair we don't get much 'round here
So if you're gonna stay could you just let me know, oh
It never rains in coronado
Much rather have your heart than take it out alone
If you're gonna stay could you just let me know?
