

Never Better

Luca Brasi

We never learnt to know better
Don't leave this lingering here
Where all things break
And fall into decay
There's nothing left to say

Hold my hand when you hold my head down
When the walls are crumbling
And your voice won't make a sound
And your heart hurts

And it's worse when your legs don't work
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
Expecting outcomes as the worst
And it's worse when your legs don't work
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
By now we should have learned

And I guess I'm doing better
With your voice now I know you're here
There's too much at stake
To turn your head away
There's gotta be something to say

Hold my hand when you hold my head down
When the walls are crumbling

And it's worse when your legs don't work
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
Expecting outcomes as the worst
And it's worse when your legs don't work
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
By now we should have learned

Maybe what I'm scared of is me
Maybe I've got every right to be
When I'm coming apart at the seams
Maybe what I'm scared of is me
Maybe I've got every right to be
Shit I'm coming apart at the seams

And it's worse when your legs don't work
(When your legs don't work)
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
(So tired and rehearsed)
Expecting outcomes as the worst
And it's worse when your legs don't work
(Worse when your legs don't work)
Every effort feels so tired and rehearsed
(So tired and rehearsed)
By now we should have learned
By now we should have learned
By now we should have learned
