

How Loud Your Heart Gets

Lucius

Oh, our igloo house is bigger now
We made each brick of ice like stone
It's a fort that can't be broken
A place no one will ever find us

We we're children, now we've grown
We we're children, now we've grown
We we're children, now we've grown
We we're children, now we've grown

Nobody knows how loud your heart gets
'Cause we're a million miles away but I still hear you
And I'm going, going, going, going to get you

Tell you all my memories and you will tell me yours
The colors of my favorite trees before the winter's war
The reasons you and me should talk about the great unknown
Without the distance in between and all the obstacles we've known

The things we know we just don't know
The things we know we don't know
The things we know we just don't know
The things we know we don't know

Nobody knows how loud your heart gets
'Cause we're a million miles away but I still hear you
And I'm going, going, going, going to get you
Yeah I'm going, going, going, going to get you

Nobody knows how loud your heart gets
'Cause we're a million miles away but I still hear you
And I'm going, going, going, going to get you
Yeah I'm going, going, going, going to get you
Like a robber in the night, I'm going to get you
Nobody knows even with how loud his heart gets
Yeah I'm going, going, going, going to get you
Yeah I'm going, going, going, going to get you
