

Summer's Gone

Lunik

thoughts running through my head shivering autumn breeze outside the window decent and calm
golden sunbeams on my nose warmth in my heart
you used to give it to me

a kiss on the neck
bread fresh from the oven
just the two of us
the day after a party drowsily snuggling up to you pyjamas all day long
wasting time
forgetting all

how could i ever want to have this all again cause when i had it last
i shared it with you
alone it doesn't feel right - summer's gone summer's gone - and everywhere i see your face summer's gone - no one could ever take your place summer's gone - my heart doesn't take it yet for real

red flower in my hair
you picked it for me
on our lovers walk
resting in a clearing you're looking in my eyes this must be a fairy tale

summer's gone
