

I Might As Well Be Here Alone

Lynn Anderson

You're watching the clock that hangs on the wall your hand is o n the telephone
And it seems that you're waiting for a knock on the door
And I might as well be here alone
We agreed to try again you promised that you would Even moved away from all our neighborhood
But you're watching the clock that hangs on the wall
You're thinking of nights that are gone
I can tell by the way hey you're treatin' mean but I might as w ell be here alone

We agreed to try again...
