

Strong Things

MacKenzie Porter

I wish you were these whiskey sips
So I could feel your kiss pressed up against my lips
I wish you were that neon smoke
So I could breathe you in and I could take you home

If I know you, you ain't that far from me
If I know you, you're just a bar from me
And I don't miss you
Least I won't say it
If there's a shot left
I'ma take it

Sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I find myself thinking 'bout your love
Sometimes when it's late, I feel your body
Right here beside me just like it was
I'm just chasing memories
I'm just trying to drink you back
I'm just trying to fix me
With whatever's in this glass
Sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I start to taste the past
And I want you back
And I want you back

I wish that history we wrote
Didn't feel like it was so many years ago
I wish you'd walk in, just sit down, and lean in
And pretend what happened didn't happen

If I know you, you ain't that far from me
And I know you, you're still a part of me

'Cause sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I find myself thinking 'bout your love
Sometimes when it's late, I feel your body
Right here beside me just like it was
I'm just chasing memories
I'm just trying to drink you back
I'm just trying to fix me
With whatever's in this glass
Sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I start to taste the past
And I want you back
And I want you back

Sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I find myself thinking 'bout your love
Sometimes when it's late, I feel your body
Right here beside me just like it was
I'm just chasing memories
I'm just trying to drink you back
I'm just trying to fix me
With whatever's in this glass
Sometimes when I drink too many strong things
I start to taste the past
And I want you back