

Today Ain't That Day

MacKenzie Porter

I should've learned
Now the coffee's burned
I'm still getting used to this thing on my own

Now I'm running late
Must've went the wrong way
Cause everytime we took this road you drove

And I'll be fine
I'll be free
I won't wake up and reach for you
Thinking your right next to me
I'll be strong
I'll have grace
And I won't have kept your picture by
The bedside just incase
And the sun will rise
And I'll be okay
But today ain't that day

In this corner booth
I still feel you
It breaks my heart that they set it up for two

So I'll order you whiskey
And for me red wine
I'll drink 'em both down to drown you out for a little while

And I'll be fine
I'll be free
I won't wake up and reach for you
Thinking your right next to me
I'll be strong
I'll have grace
And I won't have kept your picture by
The bedside just incase
And the sun will rise
And I'll be okay
But today ain't that day

How many nights did I have to sleep on it
Sleep on it
Before you go away

I'll be fine
And I'll be free
No, I won't wake up and reach for you
Thinking your right next to me
I'll be strong
I'll have grace
And I won't have kept your picture by
The bedside just incase
And I'll be okay
No, today nothing's changed
