

Far from Home

Madder Mortem

It's very late
You haven't noticed that the light has changed
It means we're running out of time
The moments slip away
While we are full of doubt and half unmade
And far too much is on the line

You're so far from home
And it's tearing me apart
I drown in the hope
That there's shelter where you are

Your eyes are still the same
But you speak in echoes from another place
Will you know how to get back here?
I'd show you how
But I don't think you'd know my voice right now
There is just too much on your mind

You're so far from home
And it's tearing me apart
I drown in the hope
That there's shelter where you are

Blood flows slow and dries too fast
Bonds break and tear where they should last
My love, my one, you should be more afraid

Dawn breaks the dark
I breathe, and there you are
Holding on to my eyes
And the world is full of light
So bring tomorrow on