Hangover

Madi Diaz

Lied, lied to myself like a hundred times
Lied to keep the fantasy alive
Anything to keep myself from dealing with the fact
I gotta move all of my shit out of your house
Can't afford the rent all by myself
Should have gave you up but I'm too proud
I thought that this would be easier by now

I think about you in the morning
I guess that means you're still important
I'm always missing on you sometimes
But I always take a hit even though I'll feel it in the morning
Even though I say you're not important
I try to get a little closure but I still wake up with your han
gover

It's a lot, I'm always alright until I'm not Walked across the corner where we fought
I can feel you even when you're not
The memories they just hang about
And I thought, I thought that this would be easier by now

I think about you in the morning
I guess that means you're still important
I'm always missing on you sometimes
But I always take a hit even though I'll feel it in the morning
Even though I say you're not important
I try to get a little closure but I still wake up with your han
gover

Hangover, I still wake up with your hangover
You get me right here
You get me, you get me right, you get me right here
You get me right here
I still wake up with your hangover
You get me right, you get me right here
You get me right, you get me right here
You get me right here
I still wake up with your hangover

Tištěno z pisnicky-akordy.cz

Sponzor: www.srovnavac.cz - vyberte si pojištění online!