Remember, Remember

Remember darling when we used to dance
No children to care for, for we were children too lost in romance
A lot of future plans and no logic

Remember darling when we used to laugh
Under a ceiling of starlight, the carpet made of grass
You played with my hair and passed me notes in class
And I would stutter

Time it doesn't wait for anybody
It only turns into the past
If I could change the things that changed me I wouldn't
I'd let each moment last

We love and we lose and remember, remember
We love and we lose and remember

Remember darling when we used to fight
In the heat of anger, the cool of sleepless night
Bickering, arguing, wondering why we never used our words before

Remember when they said we'd never last
Work and distance and six months past our starting date
Now twenty years later look who's laughing

Time it doesn't wait for anybody
It only turns into the past
If I could change the things that changed me I wouldn't
I'd let each moment last

Baby, we love and we lose and remember, remember
We love and we lose and remember, remember

Remember when this was home for more than us
The hallways echoing little restless feet, the toys collecting dust
What I would give to feel that tiny hand in mine

Time it doesn't wait for anybody
It only turns into the past
If I could change the things that changed me I wouldn't
I would only let each moment last

We love and we lose and remember, remember
We love and we lose and remember, remember
All we can do is remember, remember
