

When Love Loves Alone

Madison Cunningham

Sometimes love comes like the morning
Hiding inside of the gloom
Sometimes it falls like an evening
Sometimes love falls when you do

Sometimes love grows in the shadows
Where roses, they seldom bloom
Sometimes it withers in sunlight
Sometimes love grows where you do

I don't mind, pass me by
Life rarely gives you a second try
I'll be here watching from this side
Sometimes love loves alone

Sometimes love comes fast and fleeting
Love can be soft and slow
Sometimes it leaves without warning
Sometimes love waits alone

Sometimes love's made out of wishes
Or built on the concrete of trust
Sometimes love leans on a wavering glass
Sometimes love stands alone

I don't mind, pass me by
Life may just give you a second try
But I'll be here watching from this side
Sometimes love loves alone

Sometimes love lasts for a moment
Sometimes it stays a hundred years
Honey, I've heard them say it's never long enough
But sometimes love loves alone

I don't mind, pass me by
I often dream of when you were mine
If you were wondering, I will be fine
Sometimes love loves alone
