When Silence Falls

Mads Langer

As I loosen up the blindfold I begin to see
My scars have yet not healed, but I am free
No one ever told that a storm would be coming
I was in the water and the river overflowed

When silence falls, that is when I feel lonely
When silence falls, it falls too heavily on my shoulders
And then I feel the absence of you
And all the things that we used to do

The colors of my wildest fantasy
Are still the same, but something's changed in me
I guess that it's no wonder that I'm all confused
When I've lost the sense of you

When silence falls, that is when I feel lonely
When silence falls, falls too heavily on my shoulders
And then I feel the absence of you
And all the things that we used to do

The turnkey comes, it tells me time is up
I'm in again, now the door is locked
How I wish that I could sing a song for you
But you have disappeared without a clue

When silence falls, that is when I feel lonely
When silence falls, oh it falls too heavily on my shoulders
And then I feel the absence of you
And all the things that we used to do
