

Cheers (To The End)

Makari

Now before you throw yourself away
Just give it one more day
Cause you're falling out of reach now
To vanish in the rain

It's been so long
Dyed your hair blonde
Now you don't recognize yourself
Feel your heart beating, thoughts repeating
A hollow shell (a hollow shell)

We're careful when we're lonely
We'll shut and lock the door
Push back against the ones who
Loved us all along

Versed in the art of losing
It always feels the same
Cheers to our own undoing
Grab a glass, pour the champagne

Now you're drifting away
I watch you blend with the shade

You were so calm
Jet-black-time-bomb
Hell-bent on destroying yourself
Feel my heart beating, not retreating
So far I fell

We're careful when we're lonely
We'll shut and lock the door
Push back against the ones who
Loved us all along

Versed in the art of losing
It always feels the same
Cheers to our own undoing
Grab a glass, pour the champagne

Now you're lying through your teeth
While your ember grows so weak
When you're lying in the street
Will you finally be at peace?

We're careful when we're lonely
We'll shut and lock the door
Push back against the ones who
Loved us all along

Versed in the art of losing
It always feels the same
Cheers to our own undoing
Grab a glass, pour the champagne
