

Remember when we'd lie together in the moonlight?
Painting the canvas-sky with visions of our new life

But I'm afraid it was in vain
You've gone away
And without you every sunset looks the same
Those stars have lost their meaning

What about the times you said
You'd stay and fight for what's ahead?
And through each other we would mend
Together we'd embrace the end

How will I find my way back from the dream
You pulled me into like the summer breeze?

We made up all the brightest colors of the afternoon
Casting our shadows like facades on the walls of my room
I sowed myself right into you
Just as the autumn flowers bloomed

What about the times you said
You'd stay and fight for what's ahead?
And through each other we would mend
Together we'd embrace the end

And when I was robbed of joy
You were there to block the noise
Without your shine, without your voice
It seems to me I have no choice

When we part from one another
Have we truly left each other?
Or someday may we start again
With all new bones and fingerprints?

Remember when we'd lie
Together in the moonlight?

What about the times you said
You'd stay and fight for what's ahead?
And through each other we would mend
Together we'd embrace the end

And when I was robbed of joy
You were there to block the noise
Without your shine, without your voice
It seems to me I have no choice

The autumn flowers have withered away
