

The Other Side

Malevolence

Perseverance or just fate
Recalculate to set things straight
Depraved in darkness and terrified
Of the other side
Of the life I thought we made
Broken promises, no shame
Choking realization of reality
My whole soul torn from me

A Burden that I cannot hold
Temptation burn my soul
I watched you fall, you let me fail
You let me become frail

Far too many times
We did not see what has made us blind
They say all wounds will heal with time
But I've been waiting
I open my eyes, I cannot see
I fill my lungs, I cannot breathe
They say all wounds will heal with time
But I still feel mine
And now I feel no more

Hallucinations in the night
Watching the love between us die
Still hear your voice in my mind
Still see your face when I close my eyes

I'll always be waiting by your side

Far too many times
We did not see what has made us blind
They say all wounds will heal with time
But I've been waiting
I open my eyes, I cannot see
I fill my lungs, I cannot breathe
They say all wounds will heal with time
But I still feel mine

Some are troubles all your own
Some are paths we walk alone
No more can I be in silence surrounding me
In silence surrounding me