

Lay It Down

Mallary Hope

Are you broken? Burdened down with
So much guilt, regret, and mistakes
Are you crumbling from the weight of it?
Told yourself for so long you're to blame
You were never meant to carry this all on your own

Lay it down at the feet of Jesus
Lay it down at the feet of Jesus
All of your pain, all of your shame
Every tear, He'll wash away
When you lay it all down

Are you drowning in your worry?
You can't see the shore for the waves
There's a lighthouse waiting for you
No matter what the enemy might say
You were never meant to fix this mess by yourself

Lay it down at the feet of Jesus
Lay it down at the feet of Jesus
Every lie, all of your doubt
Lift up your eyes, there's only truth now
When you lay it all down

Lay it down at the Cross where He laid down it all
Suffered and died for our sin and shame
Down in the hills where forgiveness ran red
See the scars that overcame

Every lie, every tear
All your shame disappears
When you lay it all down
Lay it all down
