

Glimmer

Mallory Knox

There once was a man who held a gun to his head
He's sitting sad & all alone & faking smiles to pretend
But there's a tiny little glimmer in the back of his mind that's going down, down, down
But not this time

And then he tripped & he fell & found himself in a hole
He felt like he was crushed from all the weight of the world
But there's a tiny little glimmer in the back of his mind that's
going down, down, down
But not this time

So shine a light to the land my lover I'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight
So shine a light to the land my lover I'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight

There once was a man who woke to find himself dead
Walking sad & all alone to find his way home again
But there's a tiny little glimmer in the back of his mind that's
going down, down, down
Can't leave this time

So shine a light to the land my lover I'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight
So shine a light to the land my lover I'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight
So shine a light to the land my lover i'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight
So shine a light to the land my lover i'll be holding on to you
'll be fine on your own tonight, tonight

There once was a man who held a gun to his head
He's sitting sad & all alone & faking smiles to pretend
But there's a tiny little glimmer in the back of his mind that's going down, down, down