

Run for Your Life

Måns Zelmerlöw

Wishing through a window
You see her eyes of sorrow
And though you try to help her
It gets worse before it's better
It hits you like a cold truth
It's only ever old news
Cause every time and time and time again
You tie the ropes that bind your hands

So why don't you run for your life
Prisoner
He steals the tears from your eyes
Reveler
And if you ever make it out safe
Don't ever feel the need for redemption
Why don't run for your life
For your life

I may not be your white light
The paradise to take flight
But when your arms are emptied
I'll wake you from a bad dream
And every time and time and time again
I'll keep you from remembering

So why don't you run for your life
Prisoner
He steals the tears from your eyes
Reveler
And if you ever make it out safe
Don't ever feel the need for redemption
Why don't run for your life
For your life

Rely on me
Revive with me

Why don't you run for your life
Prisoner
He steals the tears from your eyes
Reveler
And if you ever make it out safe
Don't ever feel the need for redemption
Why don't run for your life
For your life
