

Everything Is Shattering

Maps

You disappear and throw your mind
Your rules form nothing most the time
A fitting tribute no-one hears
So let 'em have it, lose your fears

People will say it's the coward's way out
People don't know what this was ever about
They treat you like pornography
As everything is shattering

There is someone for everyone
But when that love has been and gone
You settle for another one
Whether they be right or wrong
Whether there is love or none

You live only for the one you lost
Born for nothing, to abyss
And nothing worth this wasted wish
An emptiness on which to cry

Your rules are useless most the time
So, one last statement of intent
And boldly break that routine sent
From years ago and cry and sing

As everything is shattering
You know I never blamed you
For all the things we've been through
But life just ain't the same
As failure comes again

Everything is shattering
Everything is shattering
Everything is shattering
Everything is shattering