

The Beginning

Mason Jennings

This is a brand new day
This is the moment when the curtain shifts
When the light comes up and the darkness lifts
And fades away

This is the beginning
This is the very first page
This is the part where the stage is set
For the places and people we've not yet met
We seem far away

Then, then there in the hallway
He, he first sees her eyes
And suddenly the beginning
Becomes the rest of their lives

Who's been calling my name now
Who's been calling my name
This is the time of the great unknown
When your heart explodes and your mind gets blown
Completely away

This is the hour of the love divine
The same old power that makes the new sunshine
Each and every day

Then, then there in the hallway
He, he first sees her eyes
And suddenly the beginning
Becomes the rest of their lives

Then, then there in the hallway
He, he first sees her eyes
And suddenly the beginning
Becomes the rest of their lives