

Diamonds

Mat Kerekes

You're heading back, back to the start
You're not sure how you got where you are
And it's getting late and now the lights are off
No one is ever born a hero, they are broken into one

If we can take our time
But don't you take too long
If we can take our time

Oh, don't you notice diamonds in your eyes
While you're looking through your window?
Oh, years have been stolen, living on the inside
Living on the inside

Stranger, where are you heading next?
A handful of magazines was all that I could get Old friend, I'll go to the places we've been
And pretend you never left, pretend you never left

Oh, don't you notice diamonds in your eyes
While you're looking through your window?
Oh, we are outspoken, living on the inside
Living on the inside, we have been there for so long

Okay, I think it's time to go
I put my fingers to the ground and wept
Okay, I think we've said enough
We were never meant to feel that way again

Oh, don't you notice diamonds in your eyes
While you're looking through your window?
Oh, it gets lonely living on the inside
Living on the inside
