

My Point Of You

Matilda Mann

Holy fuck I need a hair cut
Can't believe it's been a year
I've been waiting
Cause you told me that one day you'd reappear

Fell asleep right through the summer
Cause I don't function that way
All at once I realised i hadn't eaten yet that day

I miss daylight savings
And rearranging my room
I'm just sick and tired
Of holding on to June
But I'm not fazed by a different view
Cause it's me who's coming back
Not you

Think I'll go and catch that movie
That you said you'd know I'd hate
And I'll get 5 bags of popcorn
Just enough to compensate

And I know about your family
That they like me more than you
Couldn't say that I don't blame them
Didn't call you never do

I like day light savings
And getting out my room
And I moved away from
The whole idea of June
And I'm not fazed by
This different view
Cause it's me who's coming back
Not you

Maybe one day when you grow up
Life will feel like it's brand new
Ain't it fun not being stubborn
Welcome to my point of you
