

Thanks to You

Matt McAndrew

Thanks to you I took a train
On the rails I'm free to roam
Thanks to you, now I'm fallin'
And I don't let 'em call me back home

When I was young I had a heavy heart
And my mind was filled with shame
I was young but now I'm older
I know my heavy shoulders weren't to blame

You know people, they don't wanna stay the same
I won't sell my soul for a mountain of gold
But I'll sell it all for just a little fame

Thanks to you I'm out on the tracks
Tryin' to find out who I am
Thanks to you now I'm fallin'
Honey, my broken wings don't give a damn

Babe, sometimes I wanna settle down
And put your picture back in its frame
But sometimes I want a new town
Where nobody knows my name

Honey you're the only one who understands
And I promise in the mirror I'll be with you this year
I'm a rambler, but I wanna be your man
I'm gonna love you anyway I can

Thanks to you
