

Necessary

Matt Wertz

We've been sleeping in every Saturday morning
Waking up slow to the light pouring in
Coffee is on, life is beautifully boring
Again

I used to think I was better on my own
Thought that I didn't need anyone else
But you interrupted the story that I told
Myself

Now, who would I be without you?
And where would I go? Thank God that I found you
And what would I do if I lost you?
And what good is love if it don't cost you?
I need you so much that it scares me
How did you come to be so necessary?

It's the way that you listen, the way that you see me
It's how you keep trying when I've given up
I'm hard on myself, but you make me look easy
To love

So, who would I be without you?
And where would I go? Thank God that I found you
And what would I do if I lost you?
And what good is love if it don't cost you?
I need you so much that it scares me
How did you come to be so necessary?

For the first time in my life
I am not my own
So if I hold on too tight
It's 'cause I don't know

Who I would be?
Where I would go?
What would I do if I lost you?
And what good is love if it don't cost you?

So, who would I be without you?
And where would I go? Thank God that I found you
And what would I do if I lost you?
And what good is love if it don't cost you?
I need you so much that it scares me
How did you come to be so necessary?
