

Colours

Matthew Mole

Every minute, every hour of the day
Remind me of the sanity you let me throw away
With every piece of me, will be a piece of my decay
Never break it, never know it, never take it from the life you gave

And all your dreams have been tearing me apart
But from what it seems, I've been too scared of the dark
Would you set me free, would you show me who you are?
Let me wear your eyes

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Take in on, make it home, take a bow
If you never take a moment, then you'll never make a vow
You call it when you know it and you call it when you're found
But you never see the hope, you only see when we're asleep somehow

And all your dreams have been tearing me apart
But from what it seems, I've been too scared of the dark
Would you set me free, would you show me who you are?
Let me wear your eyes

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Save me
Save me, save me

Every minute, every hour of the day
Remind me of the sanity you let me throw away
With every piece of me will be a piece of my decay
Never break it, never take it from the life you gave

Tell me when we'll be together
Help me be this free forever
Tell me when we'll be together
Help me be this free forever

Tell me when we'll be together
Help me be this free forever
Tell me when we'll be together
Help me be this free, free, free, free

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Colour in every daydream
Colour whenever they bleed
Colour will never hold me back
Colour will never save me

Save me
Save me, save me