

Lovers in Another Life

Matthew Perryman Jones

I wake in the garden
Sleeping on a bed of stone
In the shadows that darken
A heart without a home

And you push me and pull me
I keep coming back for you

I hold on to see you again
Like we were lovers in another life
I still hold on, pulling the thread
Like we were lovers in another life

I wanted to find you
I looked so long I lost myself
Did I recognize you?

Did I mistake you for someone else?

And you push me and pull me
I keep coming back for you

I hold on to see you again
Like we were lovers in another life
I still hold on, pulling the thread
Like we were lovers in another life

Oh I hold on to see you again
Like we were lovers in another life
I still hold on, pulling the thread
Like we were lovers in another life
