

Willfully Blind

Max McNown

You took me unaware, but I can't say I wasn't warned
Like a man who builds no shelter when he sees a coming storm
So maybe I deserve to be this kind of ripped apart
You showed me knives for hands, and I still let you hold my heart

Sometimes love is willfully blind
You see muddy water, and you call it wine
We know the score, we've seen the signs
But sometimes love is willfully blind

Your love was like a fire, and I stoked it like a fool
Girl, you were a liar, and I was playing by the rules
I wonder when I'll trust again, you will never see
The pain I locked away from what you did to me

Sometimes love is willfully blind
You see muddy water, and you call it wine
We know the score, we've seen the signs
But sometimes love is willfully blind

I'm tired of the nights, feel like I'm losing my Mind in the lie that I don't love you
I still love you
Oh-oh, oh

Sometimes love is willfully blind
You see muddy water, and you call it wine
We know the score, we've seen all the signs
But sometimes love is willfully blind
