Seven stages when a heart breaks
I'm still in denial
I know I've gotta be a man now
But I'm feeling like a child
I'm not ready for goodbye yet
So I'll stay here for a while

I'm the keeper of your memory
I'm the messenger you made
Here to keep alive the details
So you'll never fade away
But I've got so many questions
Many things I wanna say, like

When will you come home
And wake me up, to let me know
With all your love
There's no more pain
That you're OK
Heaven knows your name
I hear it called, in pouring rain
If autumn leaves can fall and grow
In spring again, then let me know
When will you come home

Uh uh uh

Could I maybe come and visit
Is there a number I can call
Even if it's for a minute
I just really wanna talk
About the children of your children
And how you're living through them all, so

When will you come home
And wake me up, to let me know
With all your love
There's no more pain
That you're OK
Heaven knows your name
I hear it called, in pouring rain
If autumn leaves can fall and grow
In spring again, then let me know
When will you come home

Uh uh uh

When will you come home
