

Letters

Maximillian

Same place, but something's different
Yeah I noticed something's off
So fast, I almost missed it
But it's too late, and now you're gone

I spill another glass of wine
Kill the lights to pass the time
'Cause you're not here to ask me how I feel

I still hope you read my letters
That they bring you peace at night
Even at our darkest hour
I know that we'll be alright

Makes no sense, I don't believe it
Is it true that they can just take you away?
Walls were never made for freedom
And I'd break every single one to see your face

And I will hold the hourglass
Counting every grain of sand
'Cause nothing feels the same until you're home

I still hope you read my letters
That they bring you peace at night
Even at our darkest hour
I know that we'll be alright

So many faces to remember
But yours is the only one I know
The one I believe in
The place I call home
I'll light a light for you tonight
Send out a prayer in my mind
'Cause I know
We'll be alright
