Dreamcatcher

McCafferty

She says let's take the eastway highway, I think I need to breathe
And with my windows rolled down gently it all comes out easily
But I have friends that say that it is easier to die
And I have friends that say that it is easier to die

Well my dad's working late tonight, it's just me and my mom
And I will call my girlfriend up because we used to be in love
My wall is painted white but scribbled black
With all the small town names of Ohio's back

And I remember back in school when you were getting high
And we were sleeping in your basement, this could stand the tes t of time
And I have all these memories and all these bitter pains
And all these simple things that I wish I could go and say

But I don't feel like I get who you are anymore
And I don't feel like I get who you are anymore
And I don't feel like I get who you are anymore
And I don't feel like I get who you are anymore
But we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now

And when I kicked you in the face, your blood it stained my sho e
Like some sort of pathetic letter that says "Goodbye, fuck you too"
And I am sorry that I lost you all
I wonder if your mom ever talks about me still

And we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now
And we could stay like this for now
