

Insincere Everclear

Let me drink and pour out all my secrets
Her sisters were her mother's favorite
She lives her life so dangerously

Insincere voice that heard

Throwing rocks through somebody's glass window
I heard his father hits the bottle
He lives his life so dangerously

Insincere love that hurts

Always crash and burn and end in anger
My loved ones here have turned to strangers
I miss the way things used to be

Insincere Everclear

Let me drink and pour out all my secrets
Her sisters were her mother's favorite
She lives her life so dangerously

Can you help figure this out
If we both want this to stay
I think it might be the cold
But you take my breath away

Can you help figure this out
If we both want this to stay
I think it might be the cold
But you take my breath away

Can you help figure this out
If we both want this to stay
I think it might be the cold
But you take my breath away