

Oh So Clean

McCafferty

They found a place where you can drink outside
And you were telling your friends that you can't wait to get drunk
But you're the type of girl that likes to write down her stories in a notebook

And it gets scarier as the days go on
And it is harder for you to fake who you are
But you are beautiful, and this is oh so clean
So you can take what you want, fake a smile and I mean
That I need you but I hate all of your friends
And the way that you act when we hang out with them
And I might move back home this fall
So I can finally gain control
And I might move back home this fall
So I can finally sleep again, finally sleep again

This is almost over now
I only have so much blood to spill
And you were painting it on my wall
Like you would do back when we were kids
But you're the same person that I knew
You just got lost along the way
And I still love you in that way
And that will probably never change
Probably never change

And it gets scarier as the days go on
And it is harder for you to fake who you are
But you are beautiful, and this is oh so clean
So you can take what you want, fake a smile and I mean
That I need you but I hate all of your friends
And the way that you act when we hang out with them
And I might move back home this fall
So I can finally gain control
And I might move back home this fall
So I can finally sleep again, finally sleep again
