

Let It Go

Meadowlark

Sitting in my brother's bedroom
Feeling like I'm at the end of
All the pain I can handle
I'm scratching off my skin, scraping you off my mind
I'm asking my Dad for help
He doesn't know how to help me
He can see it so clearly
'Cause there's better to come if I just stay here alive

Ooo, see it all and feel it all to let it go
Ooo, trust the sun will rise again tomorrow

Do I blame it on the seasons?
Do I blame it on myself?
Do I even need a reason?
'Cause when all is said and done
Did I even try?
And how, how do I pick myself off the ground?
I can taste the soil in my mouth
Did I even try?

Ooo, see it all and feel it all to let it go
Ooo, trust the sun will rise again tomorrow
Ooo, see it all and feel it all to let it go
Ooo, trust the sun will rise again tomorrow

I know it's hard
To see outside when you're in it
But you are infinite
And when do the birds not trust the sky?

Ooo, see it all and feel it all to let it go
Ooo, trust the sun will rise again tomorrow
Ooo, see it all and feel it all to let it go
Ooo, trust the sun will rise again tomorrow
