

Who I Am

Melanie C

I was building my amour so I could fit in
To avoid any drama I would shut my mouth, I hid
I was lost in the ruins of who I thought I should be
I forgot I was human, I must set my body free

They don't recognise when I'm being honest
'Cause I wasn't before
No, they may not like it but I'm not sorry

That's who I am
No, I've got nothing left to hide, hide
I'm comfortable with what's inside, side (That's who I am)
You think you've known me all this time, time
But the real me is mine, mine (That's who I am)
That's who I am

When I look in the mirror I finally like what I see
There's been so many changes
I accept they're a part of me

They don't recognise when I'm being honest
Because I wasn't before
No, they may not like it but I'm not sorry

That's who I am
I'm comfortable with what's inside, side (That's who I am)
You think you've known me all this time, time
But the real me is mine, mine (That's who I am)

That's who I am
That's who I am
Don't recognise me, -nise me, -nise me

That's who I am
I'm comfortable with what's inside, side (That's who I am)
You think you've known me all this time, time
But the real me is mine, mine. (That's who I am)

I'm ready to drop my armour
It will make me stronger
Drop my armour
That's who I am

I'm ready to drop my armour
It will make me stronger
Drop my armour
That's who I am
