

Wild and Lonely

Melissa Etheridge

Dangerous, I must confess
I hold my tongue, I hold my breath
Another night, a long dark road
With miles and miles and miles to go
A raging hollow emptiness I feel
The night is cold and I'm alone
Come and take the wheel

Because you, you've seen me in my cage
Cursed, I've been betrayed
All the night I've lost my way

And I feel so wild and lonely
Don't you want to save me?
Don't you want to stone me?
Hey yeah, oh

If I could, and I know I should
I'd be over this, I'd be understood
A howling moon and an ancient song
I've got miles and miles to go till dawn
An angry craving seeps into my skin
It's all too much, I need to touch you once again

Because you, you've seen me in my cage
Cursed, I've been betrayed
All the night I've lost my way

And I feel so wild and lonely
Don't you want to save me?
Don't you want to stone me?
Don't you want to save me?

I feel so wild and lonely
Don't you want to steal me?
Don't you want to own me?
(Come on)
Don't you want to drive me?
Drive me on a highway?
Don't you want to save me?
Don't you want to stone me?

Wild and lonely, oh
Wild and lonely, come on, come on
Save me
Don't you want to stone me?
Wild and lonely, oh
