

Tried to fill a void inside
To find my place and no more need to hide
My life had just begun
Temptation too strong
Evert minute far too long

I brought the darkness upon us all, by ignorance
Opened a golden chest, encircled by those who death caressed

It's been told that fortune favors the bold
But no...No more shall I run
Can't make it undone
Now, lost every ounce of hope
Seems clarity comes at the end of a rope

Blood moon, your warm light shines down on me
I do confess my sin, can you release me?
Blood moon, the snare contracts around my neck
A perfect night to see your calming beauty

Come rain, come shine or hell divine
I'll take anything now, I'm dying to resign
Guilt, the shadow weighing down my shoulders to the ground
Unbearably it grinds my mind

Trying to stay alive
Or alive to stay, fighting alone...

Blood moon, your warm light shines down on me
I do confess my sin, can you release me?
Blood moon, the snare contracts around my neck
A perfect night to see your calming beauty